

THE LANDSBOROUGH BANQUET.
The complimentary dinner to Mr. Landsborough, the explorer, was given on Friday evening last, in the hall of the Exchange.

The tables were very tastefully arranged, every thing that the season could furnish being set out before the guests. The Hall was also very handsomely decorated with flowers, and evergreens, particular attention being given to the western end of the hall, in which some beautiful specimens of grass-trees and plants were tastefully grouped so as to form a peculiarly Australian picture. Mainly, however, the front of this verdant cluster was the mask of the unfortunate Leichhardt, the mystery of whose unknown fate still weighs upon many a mind. It had been very thoughtfully lent for the occasion by Mr. Attilio, and the introduction of the lineaments of the first explorer in our inland territory, who had laid down his life in the cause of knowledge, was by no means inappropriate at a banquet given in honour of one of his more fortunate successors.

Over three hundred persons sat down to table, every seat being taken, and some of the guests having to make the most of the little room that was left for them. His Excellency the Governor presided, having on his right hand the guest of the evening, Mr. Landsborough, and the Honorable Secretary for Lands; and on his left, Colonels Hamlin, Mr. E. Deas Thomson, and Mr. Justice Wise. The Hon. the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly (Mr. Hay) was Vice-president; and Mr. W. Macleay as co-chairman. In addition to the above gentlemen, we noticed as being present Mr. C. Kemp, M.L.C.; Dr. Macfarlane, M.L.C.; Mr. Gordon, M.L.A.; Mr. Smart, M.L.A.; Mr. Holt, M.L.A.; Mr. Dailey, M.L.A.; Mr. Dickson, M.L.A.; the Russian Consul, the Spanish Consul, several military officers and leading Government officials. The band of the XI. Regiment was in attendance, and rendered a short concert during the progress of dinner; and we may remark that some of these elicited loud applause.

On the tables having been cleared,

The PRESIDENT rose and said: I have the honour to propose the health of "Her Majesty the Queen—may God bless her!"

The toast was drunk with enthusiasm—the loyal prayer being fervently repeated by every lip. Band.

The PASSENGER said: Gentlemen, the toast which I have now the honour to propose is in the health of the Prince of Wales and the rest of the Royal Family. Of that Royal Family, with whose title to the throne the hearts of the people are inseparably interwoven, and under whose dynasty Great Britain has enjoyed amidst the troublous times that have beset other nations, a glorious noontide of order and equity, until the day of birth and of glory and power she has never before attained, it is now fitting that I should say much. It has been announced that the Prince of Wales will, in a few months, contract a marriage with a Princess of whom all accounts speak most favourably. Let us hope that this alliance will be productive of good, and above all, of that chieftain—good—a happy and contented home sanctified by conjugal affection and domestic happiness; and may the Royal Prince, as well as the other members of the Royal Family, be the joy and comfort to his illustrious and lamented father, as to be a comfort to his widowed mother, a support to the throne, and a glory to the country in which his high lot is cast.

The toast was drunk amidst enthusiastic cheers. Band: "Prince Albert's March."

The VICE-PASSENGER then rose and said: Before he proposed the toast allotted to him, he thought it a duty incumbent on him to discharge the minds of those present of any unfriendly impression they entertained. He had been named as the person who had been mainly instrumental in getting up this demonstration, but as he wished honour to whom honour was due, and as that honour did not belong to him, he wished to inform those present that the person who had the first instance sent out the circulars for convening a meeting in reference to Mr. Landsborough's reception was not himself, but a namesake of his own, a gentleman who had since been compelled to leave Sydney, and was not present. That was the reason why he wished the person to whom honour was due to him to be a comfort to his widowed mother, a support to the throne, and a glory to the country in which his high lot is cast.

The PASSENGER, in rising to respond to the toast, said it is no easy matter to find suitable words in which to return you thanks for a toast that has been given in so complimentary a strain, and received with so many plaudits, to which I cannot adder myself that I have any claim. Still, I can assure you, that am sensible of your kindness, and that nobody deserves a better occasion for making your opinion. It would be an occasion of great satisfaction to me to meet the assemblage of gentlemen whom I now see around this table, representing, as they do, not only the intelligence, the property, and the fixed interests of the colony, but also its progressive tendencies; but it is especially a satisfaction on the present occasion, when we are met to show our sympathy in, and our approval of the undertakings of a neighbouring colony, South Australia, and with Queensland, showing a sense of the value of what has been undertaken, and of the great results that have been attained. But in addition to this, I must own to another feeling, apart from the respect due to the praiseworthy efforts of the sister colony, and that is a feeling of which the expression has been put into the mouth of one of the characters in Sir Walter Scott's novel of Ivanhoe. There, the Young Lockleigh says, "I always like to add my hillock when I have a good shot or a gallant blow." Now I think that our gallant Mr. Landsborough, for his gallantry has been shown upon many a trying emergency. I am afraid that you will think that I am making too long a speech, but in talking of Australian exploration it is impossible not to glance at the many important districts through which Britain has taken part. No doubt, other countries have borne their share in them. The Portuguese had the coast, the Spaniards the interior, the French the north, the Dutch the south, the English the west, and the Americans the east. (Laughter.) Those shores assure me that though these gallant men have fallen, they have not fallen with us, securing for the natives an imperishable fame, but that their names would long be mentioned at many a social gathering, along with the dark episodes that followed the fate of Burke and Wills, at the very moment when these gallant men crowned their endeavours with two gallant men, whose names will long be held in respect everywhere throughout Australia.

(Loud applause.) In the course of his exploration, however, he had fallen upon a fine creek of pure water, with a fertile and exquisitely pastoral country around it. It was Cooper's Creek, a name that has since obtained for itself a melancholy notoriety by being the scene of the fatal fate of Burke and Wills, at the very moment when these gallant men crowned their endeavours with two gallant men, whose names will long be held in respect everywhere throughout Australia.

MARTIAL LAW.

(LATE RIOTS AT BURRANGONG.)

RETURN to an Address of the honourable the Legislative Assembly of New South Wales, dated 2nd December, 1862, praying that His Excellency the Governor would be pleased to cause to be laid upon the table of this House—

"A return, setting forth—

"1. A copy of any minute, memorandum, recommendation, advice, opinion, suggestion, or statement of the Attorney-General, communicated to the Colonial Secretary, in reference to the proclamation of martial law at the Burragong Gold-field, for the suppression of the riots of 1861, with the date in each instance.

"2. A copy of any minute of the Executive Council, or of the Colonial Secretary, in reference to the same matter, with the date in each instance.

"3. A copy of any correspondence between the Colonial Secretary, or anyone in his department, and the Attorney-General, or anyone in his department, in reference to the same matter, with the dates.

"4. A copy of any correspondence between any department of the Government and Colonel Kempf, or any of the military authorities, in reference to the same matter, with the dates.

"5. A copy of any draft proclamation, in reference to the same matter, with the date of its preparation.

"6. The substance of any verbal statement made by the Attorney-General to the Colonial Secretary, previously to the despatch of the military to Burragong, and in reference to the power of the Government to proclaim Martial Law."

ROCKY RIVER.

(FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

ESORTS.—The smallness of the escort, for some time past has been the subject of general remark, some persons erroneously thinking that these diggings were completely used up; but such is not the case, which our escort of the 12th instant will show, which convoyed us to Minx 1340, 42 dwts, 20 grs and 6211 in weight. The conclusion of a greater portion of the gold in the hands of the stockholders, consequent upon the reduction of the gold duty, which is generally believed to have taken place on the 1st January. The Rocky River is not defunct as reported, and the removal of the gold-digging from here to the Crow Mountain was not on account of this gold-field's diminution, but on account of there being a more rapid and the latter place for Sir Frederick's geological enterprise.

MINING LICENSES.—A great hardship has been inflicted by the new gold-fields regulations, namely, six months' licences, which were issued in October and November last, had to be renewed on the 1st January, by which regulation many persons almost paid double licences for a few months. This cannot be explained with being compelled in the most brutal and unmerciful manner by the Colonial Government to withdraw their whole force of miners, estimated variously at 800 or 2000 men, and upon the 1st January, to press for the assistance of the military and the gold-miners in this field, as an attempt was at once made to rescue them by force, which was frustrated, but has resulted in loss of life.

Apprehension, and apparently with reason, a report of the process of rebellion under the martial law patrol has led him to withdraw his whole force of miners, consisting of fifty-seven men, to Yass, having previously liberated the three men on bail, and has pressed for the assistance of the military and as strong a force as can be mustered for the service.

The miners, being thus absolutely left without protection, and the utter defiance of the law exhibited by the rioters, seem to render it necessary that this application should be complied with the least possible delay.

The Excellency the Governor, therefore, seeks the advice of the Council, that they will issue a warrant of habeas corpus to the miners, who are most desirable to take in the emergency. The Hon. the Vice-President, in his place, states, that immediately upon receiving intelligence of the above events he communicated with the General commanding the troops who have expressed their readiness to command the miners, both of Infantry and Artillery, that can be spared from the garrison, and has also placed his own services at the disposal of the Government. The honorable the Vice-President states, that Captain Cator, of H.M.S. Fawn, has agreed to go to the gold-fields with a party of six men, seamen and marines, and to take with him the light field-guns belonging to his ship.

Having long and anxiously deliberated on the nature of the advice which becomes their duty to tender in view of the circumstances, and after detailed the Council record that they earnestly wish it to be known that the power of the Government to take to assert the supremacy of the law and restore order must be resorted to without regard to consequences, and they advise as follows—

"That the General be requested to despatch to the miners, action, by sea, a draft of the law of conveyance will permit the utmost force that can be spared from the necessary duties of the garrison.

2. That he be requested to accompany that force, and with a view to the issue of a proclamation by his Excellency the Governor, prohibiting the miners over the disturbed district, should such a step be eventually considered necessary, by telegram to report his arrival at Yass, or such other place in the neighbourhood of the Burragong Gold-field as may be most convenient.

3. That he be also requested, as early as possible after his arrival, to report by telegram, jointly with Captain McLean and Mr. Cloete, in their opinion the proclamation of martial law is absolutely necessary.

4. That he be requested to furnish a copy of that act. His Excellency should issue a proclamation abolishing martial law over such a tract of country as may appear to be necessary, and consequently thereupon should also issue a further proclamation prohibiting the importation of arms, ammunition, munitions of war, and of every article of war, from the district within which martial law is proclaimed.

5. That the Inspector-General of Police be also directed to proceed to Burragong with as large a number of the men and all foot-soldiers as he can spare with a due regard to the wants of the service.

6. That Captain Cator be also informed that the Government gratefully accept his offer, and that the emergency calls for the promptest action.

7. That in concert with Colonel Kempf, Captain Cator, and Captain Leth, such provision be made for the transport of the miners force, animal, and naval—as may be necessary, and that the like instructions and authorities be given, as on the occasion of the last outbreak at Burragong, both for the supply of the forces on the line of march and when in camp, and for the transport of the men up to the mining districts and naval portion of the force whilst engaged on this service.

8. That arrangements be made for the trial of the three prisoners originally apprehended by the police, but now released, and that they be remanded for trial for being concerned in the recent riots, with as little delay as possible.

The Council think it desirable that their Honors the Judges should be consulted as to the best mode of carrying out this last consideration, and that the same be referred to the Committee of the Bar.

9. In concert with Captain Cator, express a strong hope that the proclamation of martial law may be availed of, that the miners will shrink from resorting to the measure should it be forced upon them, and they feel little doubt but that the Legislature will readily support and hold them harmless in any consequence which may ensue.

No. 2.
Colonial Secretary to Lieutenant-Colonel Kempf,
Colonial Secretary's Office.

Tuesday, January 17, 1861.

Sir.—Referring to the interview which I had with you, both yesterday evening and this day, on the subject of the outbreaks at Burragong, I have now the honour to inform you that at a meeting of the Executive Council held this forenoon, and other arrangements for meeting this emergency, it was felt that, which addressed directly to yourself or are such as it is desirable that you should be apprised of, were approved by the Council.

1. That you should be urged to despatch to the scene of action, by such draft as the means of conveyance will permit, the utmost force that can be spared from the necessary duties of the garrison.

2. That you should be requested to accompany that force, and with the view to the issue of a proclamation by his Excellency the Governor, establishing martial law in an over-dispersed district, should such a step be eventually considered necessary, to report to the government your arrival at Yass or such other place in the neighbourhood of the Burragong Gold-field as may be most convenient for conducting your force.

3. That you should be also requested, as early as possible after your arrival, to report by telegram, jointly with Captain McLean and Mr. Cloete, in your opinion, the proclamation of martial law is absolutely necessary.

4. That immediately on receipt of a report to that effect, His Excellency should issue a proclamation establishing martial law over such a tract of country as may appear to be necessary, and subsequently thereupon should also issue a further proclamation prohibiting the importation of arms, ammunition, munitions of war, and of every article of war, from the district within which martial law is proclaimed.

5. That the Inspector-General of Police be also directed to proceed to Burragong with as large a number of the men and all foot-soldiers as he can spare with a due regard to the wants of the service.

6. That the whole of the police should be under the direction of the Inspector-General, and that you should communicate with him on all matters in which the authority or action of the civil power may be required.

7. That the Government graciously accept an offer made by Captain Cator, of her Majesty's ship Fawn, to provide a vessel to remove the disturbances with safety of his men and a field-piece.

8. That in concert with yourself, Captain Cator, and Captain McLean, such provision be made for the transport of the whole force—military, naval, and civil—as may be necessary, and that the like instructions and authority be given, as on the occasion of the last outbreak at Burragong, both for the supply of the forces on the line of march and when in camp, and for the travelling and camp allowances to the military and naval portion of the force whilst engaged on this service.

2. It is also thought desirable that if, upon your arrival at the gold-field, you should find that the principal miners in the riots are few in number and though well known escapees, you should be authorized to offer a reward for their capture, not exceeding £500, but this distinctly advised to the Traveller's Home.
